Transition Period Extension:

During the transition period, we have been reviewing issues that have popped up with the New U.I. While almost all are corrected by clearing your browser's cache and web data, there are some that require a modification to the software itself. One, in particular, affects Default bidding and the ability to modify dates from previous bid periods. Navblue has a fix to that issue which will be ready soon. As always, we continue to work with Navblue on other items and improvements and have agreed to extend the current transition period indefinitely.

That means that both the Old U.I. and the New U.I. will be available until further notice.
